Topic: The New Era in Bridging GIS to Remote Sensing

The adoption of remote sensing technology is widely increasing. The fusion of geographic information system (GIS) and remote sensing enables stakeholders to better monitor and record the existing infrastructure and point of interest, while advanced analysis based on the captured data facilitate managements to make decisions on their business operation. The presenter will highlight the capabilities of imagery and remote sensing, and the potential application with the integration of GIS.

18:50 – 19:00 Q & A Session
